*Updated January 19, 2022.

**The court applied a multiplier to the parties' estimated length of trial to adjust for voir-dire; housekeeping sessions and interpreter services during trial; holidays; and the fact that Fridays will be off, given that the court anticipates devoting that time to conferences, sentencing, changes of plea, de novo, and similar hearings.

*** Trial originally scheduled on November 9, 2021, but rescheduled in light of motion at Docket No. 134.

**** The first five (5) defendants will be tried first. In the event that a motion for change of plea is filed as to any of the initial five defendants, the next defendants in line shall be ready for trial on this date.

In general, the court cannot responsibly arrange its busy civil and criminal dockets around the parties' or their attorneys' schedules. For this reason, unless extreme circumstances beyond the parties' reasonable control dictate otherwise, trials will remain as set. If trial in any of these cases consumes more time than anticipated, the parties in the case that is next in line shall be ready to try their case upon conclusion of the preceding trial. Depending on circumstances, other items may be interjected between trials, resulting in the displacement of scheduled trials to the next spot down the list.

Attorneys in civil cases are strongly encouraged to consent to the trial jurisdiction of U.S. Magistrate Judges, and engage in good faith settlement negotiation, for the extrajudicial resolution of disputes is the most efficient and effective way to end litigation.

The Clerk shall file a copy of this Order in all cases listed herein. An additional copy shall be notified to the United States Attorney's Office, the Federal Public Defender, and members of the Criminal Justice Act panel.

SO ORDERED.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, this 19th day of January, 2022.
